Raising the standard of our ready-to-wear clothing to the height of the best clothing-made-at-any-price is a difficult matter—but we think we've accomplished it.

A glance at the styles—workmanship—and fashion of our Spring garments will fully bear us out.

Our prices are the lowest in Washington—that is, the lowest for like quality. Anybody who has made comparisons will tell you that.

'Twill pay you to get one of these Spring Overcoats we're clearing out—even for next fall. Some as low as $3.50.

to bulge out with coin after the conclusion of the series.

If the Colonels keep up their present speed the old-time rivalry that used to exist between Cincinnati and Louisville will be renewed next season.

Every game between the two clubs will bring thousands of excursionists.

If Van Halten keeps up his present batting gait, he will lead the league hitters in batting average at the end of the season.

Van is eleven years old in the league and seems to grow better every season. The California is, indeed, a wonderful ball player.

In several ways yesterday's games were remarkable, and the day's results in general will hardly be paralleled this season.

There were three tie games, two extra inning contests, and with the exception of the Chicago-St. Louis affair, the scores in games were close.

The Cincinnati have won four straight games, with no defeats nor ties, they are entitled to the top of the column. The ties between Philadelphia and Boston, New York and Washington and Louisville and Pittsburgh cannot be estimated in the percentage until played off, and their figures remain the same in the table this morning.

In addition to whipping it up for the Senators, who have been in the lead for some time, the Cincinnati had a good game yesterday.

President Young watched the returns of the games at the Lyceum yesterday afternoon, and was well pleased with the continuance for showing the plays.

The only thing that bothered Uncle Nick was that he left his tobacco in the other pants pocket and had to hustle a chew from a neighbor in the audience. He got it and then settled back against the phen and enjoyed himself.

Mercer had a bad first inning, but after that settled down to business and allowed the sluggers no liberties. Young Doherty also made a most creditable showing and with good support as was given.

Mercer would have nothing to fear for a left-hander, he had admirable control and handled himself like a veteran in tight places. Joyce's assertion that he has a good game in the Vermont boy will not doubt be verified during the season.

The Young Senators made two more victories to their long string, which they gained by defeating the Athletics by a score of 14 to 5. The winning battery was Monahan and Hartnett. The teaming up as follows: Holden and Hartnett, c.; Monahan and Whelan, p.; Mangum, 1b.; Herbert, 2b.; Taylor, 3b.; Monahan, ss.; Perry, 1b.; Simpson, c. f.; Moore, r. f.; and Doherty, l. f.

From the poor starts their teams have made in the past President Robinson and Poo-Bah Freeman must realize the mistake they made in not sending their veterans to the South for their preliminary training. It is not that they are not good, but that they are not used to the hot sun and warm winds to uncurl the kinks and loosen up the joints of the old fellows, and New York and Cleveland are sure to lag behind until the hot summer sun greases their machinery.

Corcoran reports that Ritchey be sent to the "farm" at Indianapolis? was asked of Capt. Ewing, of the Cincinnati.

"No, sir. If Corcoran were to report at one I would keep Ritchey in the game," was the captain's reply. "I wouldn't change a winning team under any circumstances. If he played as well as he has, he is a fine ball player, and I think he would hold his own in the best company. If Corcoran comes we will have a utility man. The team will go through the season as it is now made up, including Corcoran, if he reports."

Not many championship games are played in one hour and twenty-five minutes. Forty-eight put-outs in eighty-five minutes is rapid work. Not quite a minute to every put-out. Such was the speed of the game between the Cincinnati and Chicago at the former city last Saturday.

It is remarkable that two minor league pitchers making their initial attempt in the aristocratic league should have had so magnificent a command displayed by Pannaman and Denzer. Only one base on balls was recorded against each of them.

It is also remarkable that of the eight hits made by the Reds seven of them were better than a single. Four triples, three doubles and one single—something that did not occur again many months. The fact, too, that neither side made an error of any kind, not a passed ball nor a wild pitch, stamps it as one of the best games of baseball ever played.

The Fatal Fitz Punch.

It is not six weeks since Fitzsimmons defeated Corbett with a stomach punch that came within an ace of ending his earthly career. Since then four men have been hit by him in the stomach.

He hit the best in the view of his great danger to life it is suggested to boxing clubs the propriety of making contestants wear a rubber shield or pad that will defend the heart and pit of the stomach against the effect of such blows. Umpire and Referee Tim Huges first suggested the idea. A pneumatic shield can be made which may save many lives.

CENTRALS-EASTERN WILL PLAY.

Opening of the Inter-High School Championship Series.

The opening game of the local inter-high school championship series will be played this afternoon at National Park. The game will be between the Central and Eastern High School clubs, and will be called at 3:30 o'clock.

There is always a great deal of rivalry between the Central and the Eastern, and as the teams are strong this year, the game promises to be a lively and interesting contest, and one that will be well worth the price of admission, which has been placed at 15 cents for all parts of the grounds.

At least one of the other Washington club players will probably umpire. The following is the batting order of the two teams: Central, E. Griffin, l. f.; H. Shuster, s. s.; McKinney, 3b.; A. T. Baker, 1b.; G. Oyster, c. f.; Burbank, c. f.; Rogers, 2b.; White, p.; Gannett, c.

Eastern: Lee Combs, s. s. (Capt.); Loomis, c. f.; Snell, 1b.; Bell, 2b.; Burroughs, 3b.; Clark, l. f.; Terry, c. f.; Briggs, c. f.; M. Hand, p. Substitutes: Central, H. Griffin, l. f.; Eastern, Bradley, Evans and Spracklen.
